Customer & Order Analysis

10.Top-rated restaurants.

Restaurant ratings average 4.25, and the differences between restaurants are no larger than random variation, so no restaurant can be called consistently top-rated. Also note that restaurant IDs and names don't correspond one-to-one.

ANALYTICAL INSIGHTS – DEMAND AND REVENUE

INSIGHT – 1: Top-rated restaurants are only slightly better rated.

The top 50 average 4.34 out of 5 and the other 450 average 4.24. All 500 restaurants fall between 4.09 and 4.39, around an overall 4.25, so even the best ones sit just 0.1 above the typical restaurant.

INSIGHT – 2: Customers don't spend more at higher-rated restaurants.

The average order is ₹1,696 at top-rated restaurants and ₹1,703 elsewhere. The correlation between restaurant rating and order value is -0.034 across restaurants and -0.007 across individual orders.

INSIGHT – 3: Ratings vary a lot from order to order.

A restaurant's rating moves as much from one order to other. 18% of the original ratings are above 5, which is impossible, and 22% reach exactly 5.

INSIGHT – 4: The top-rated list isn't stable.

When each restaurant's orders randomly into two halves, the rankings by average rating were unrelated, and so were order counts. Which restaurants are top-rated, and which are busiest, is down to chance.

4.ANALYTICAL INSIGHTS-OPERATIONS AND CUSTOMER EXPERIENCE:

INSIGHT-5: Improve order Accuracy and Customer Satisfaction

Introduce packaging checks and order verification procedures to maintain service quality. Check missing items, incorrect orders, refunds, and complaints across top-rated and lower-rated restaurants.

INSIGHT-6: Top-Rated Restaurants by Customer Rating

Promote consistently high-rated restaurants to improve customer trust and ordering confidence.
